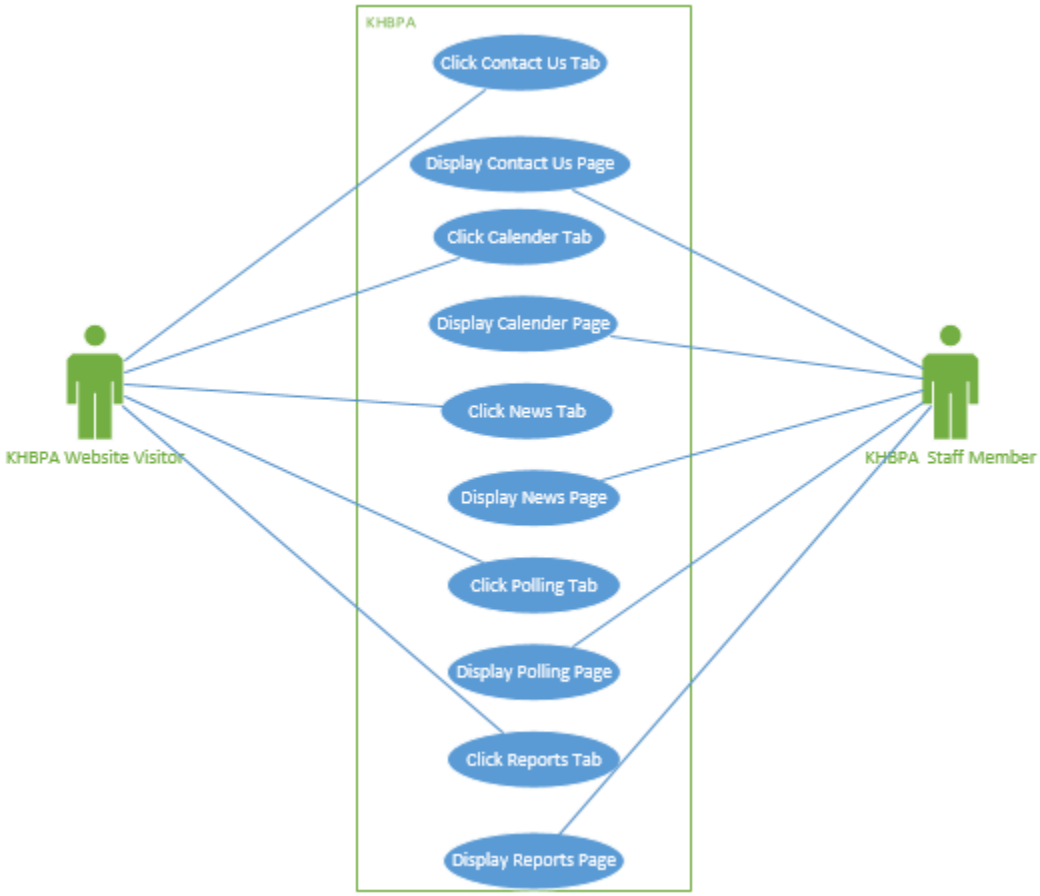
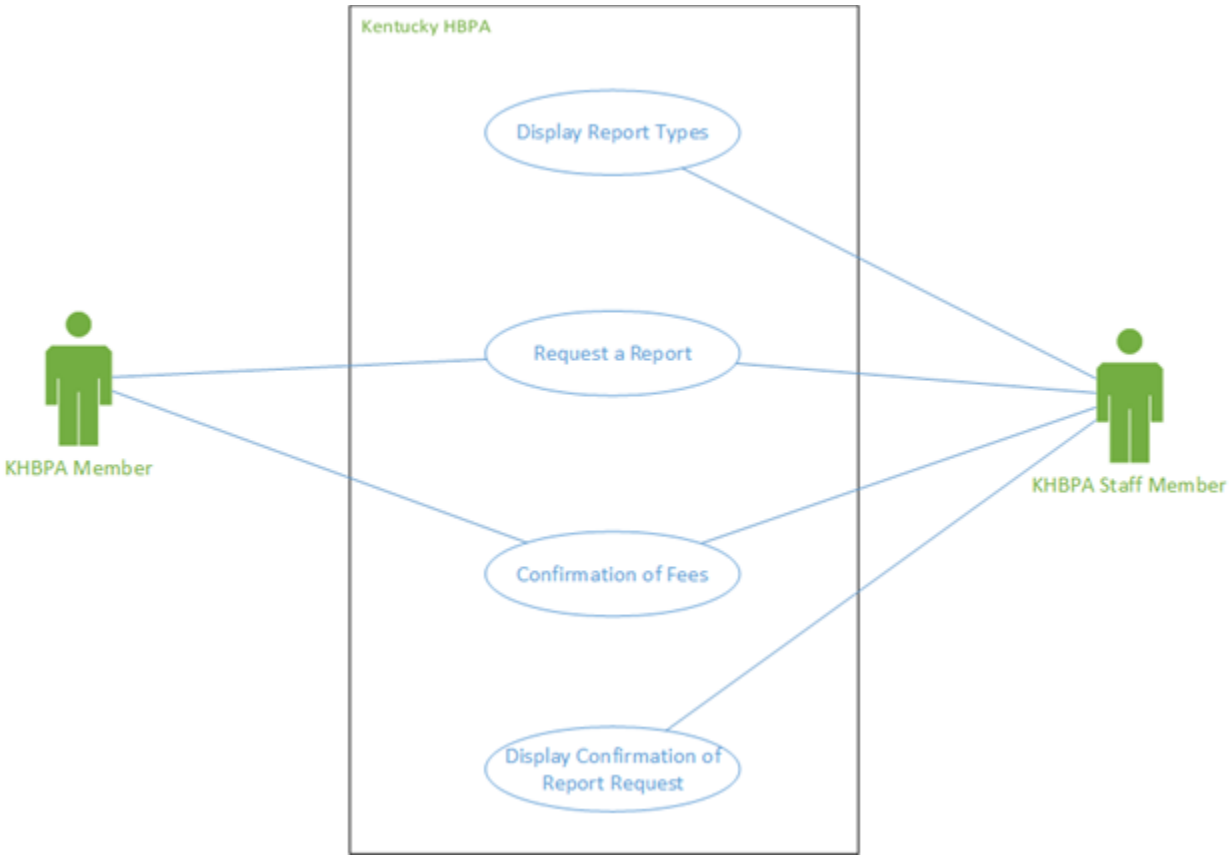
Use Case Diagram

This is a Use Case Diagram for Use Cases 1-5. A user would click on a tab for each use case which will be received by the Kentucky HBPA website and they will display each of the use cases back to the user.



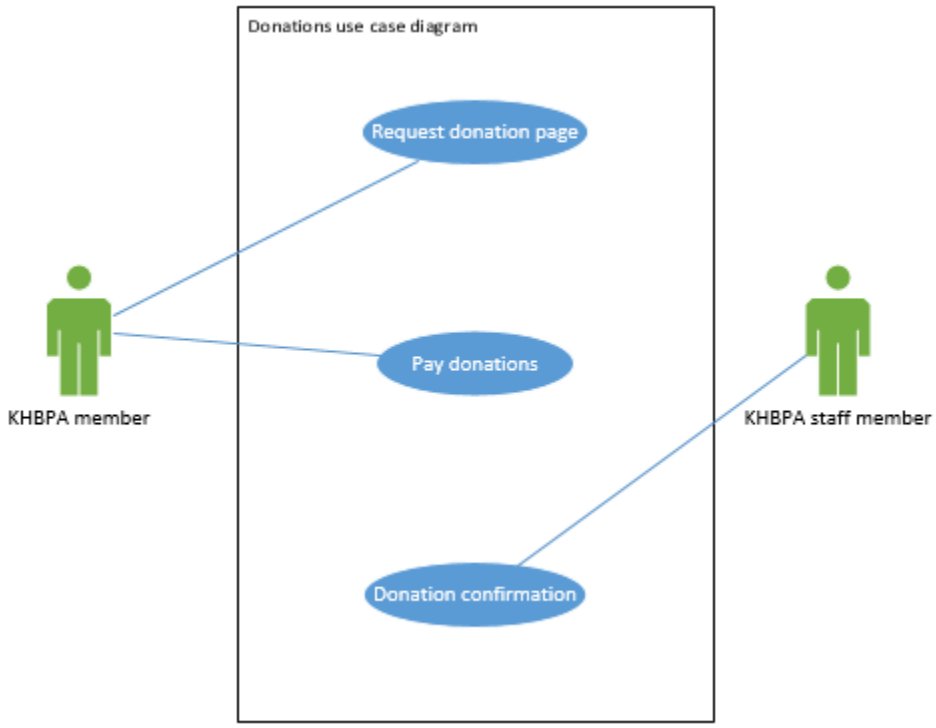
Use case diagram

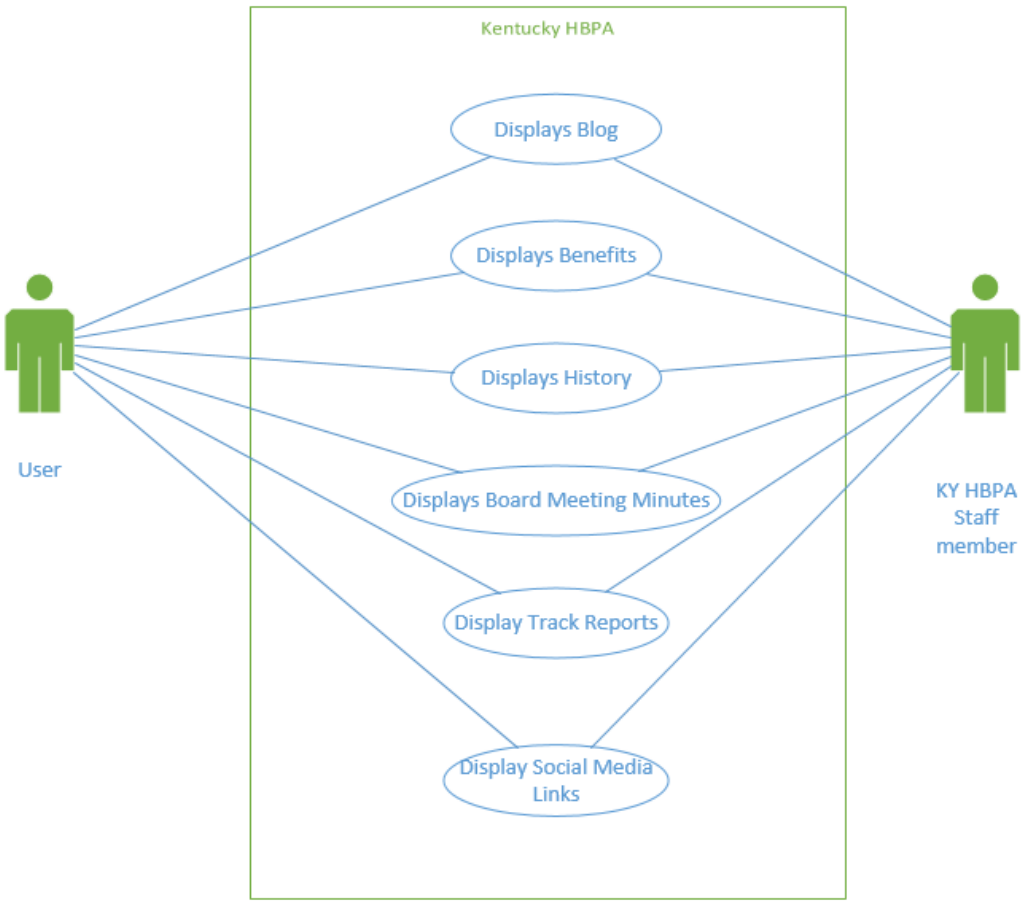
The system will display the types of reports that the member can request, the member can request the report, the system processes the request, and ensures that the member wants to pay for the report, the member confirms, and the system displays a confirmation of the request



Use Case Diagram

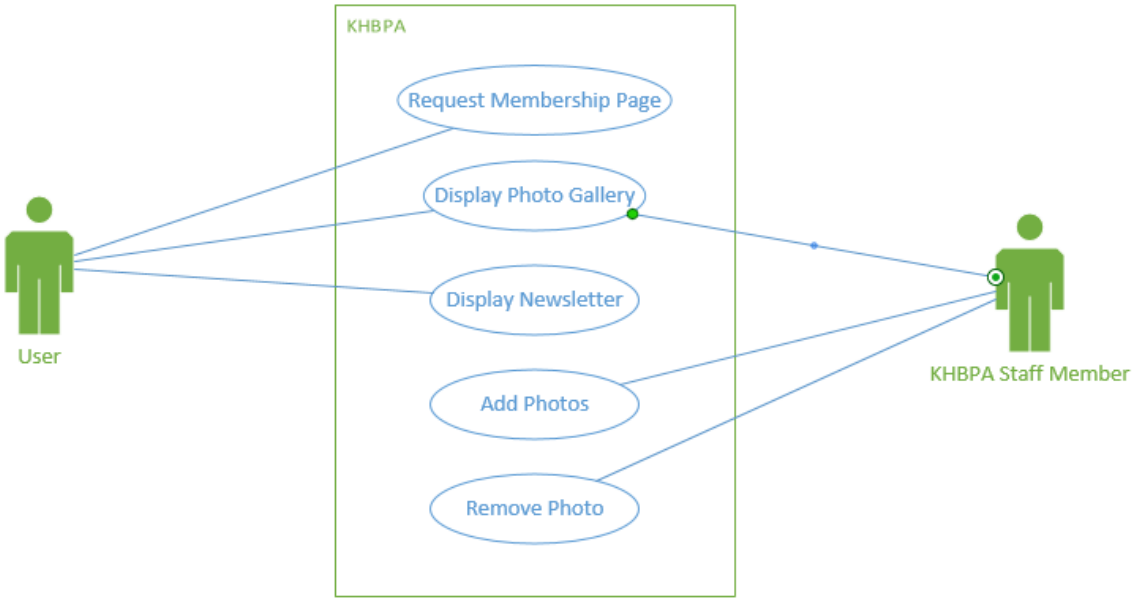
This system will display a page where the user can make donations, the user will make donations, the system will process the request and ensure the member wants to make the donation, the user confirms, and the system displays a confirmation request.



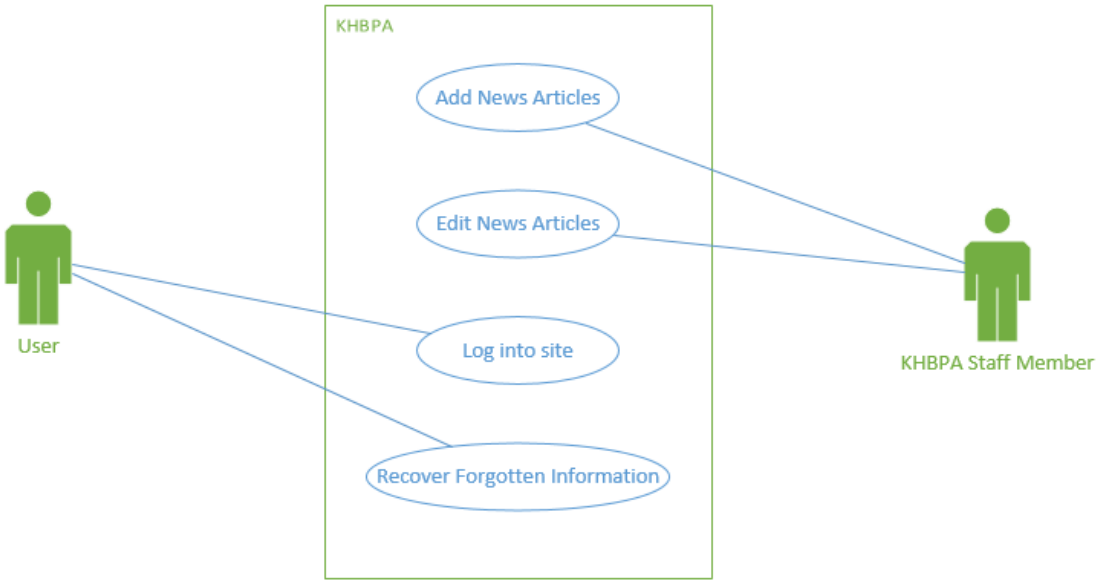


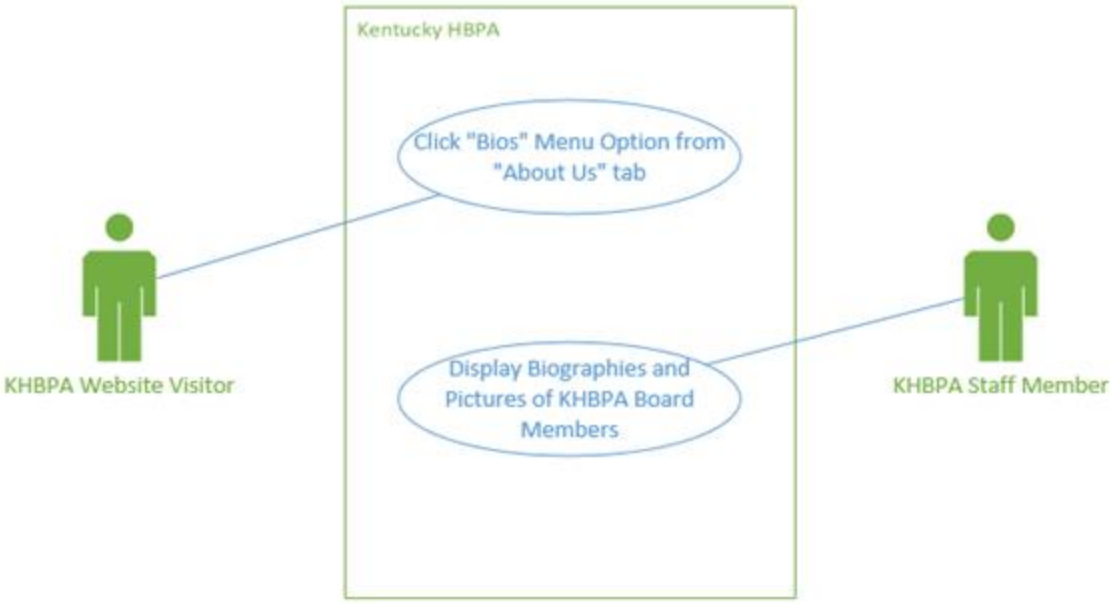
This is a Use case Diagram for Use Cases 13-19 . A user would click on a tab for each use case which will be received by the Kentucky HBPA website and they will display each of the use cases back to the user.

This Use-Case diagram shows the relationship between the Use-Cases and the users. A user will be able to request the membership page from the home page, as well as be able to view the photo gallery. The user will also be able to sign up for the newsletter via the website through the News page. Lastly the Staff member will be the only one will the ability to add or remove photos from the gallery as well.

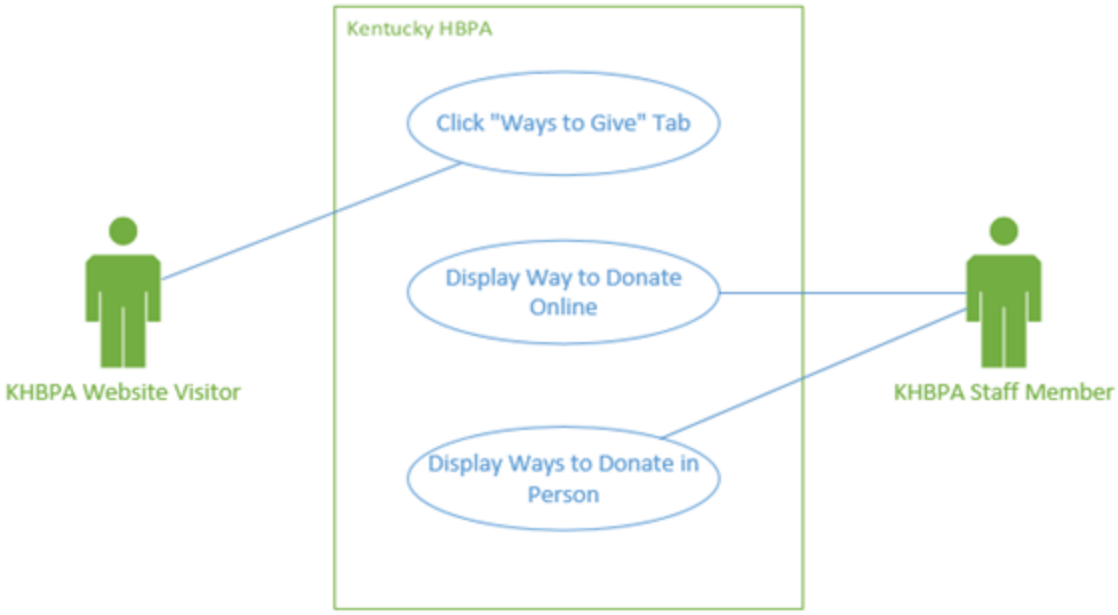


This Use-Case diagram shows the relationship between the Use-Cases and the users. The KHBPA member will be the only person(s) who will be able to add/ edit news articles on the News Page. Users will request to log in to the site as well as request to recover their forgotten login information.

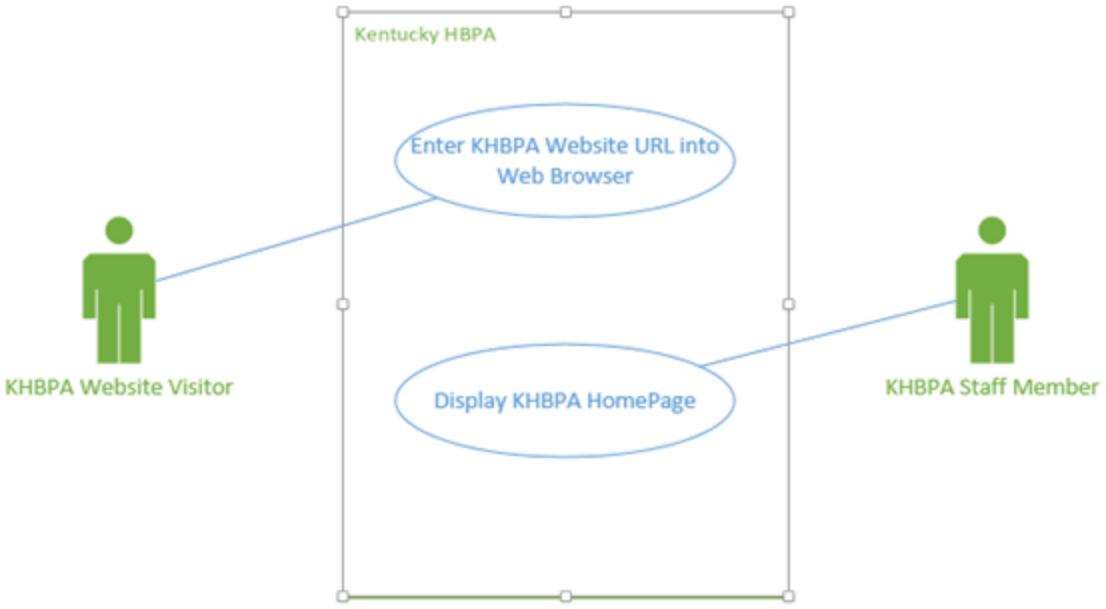




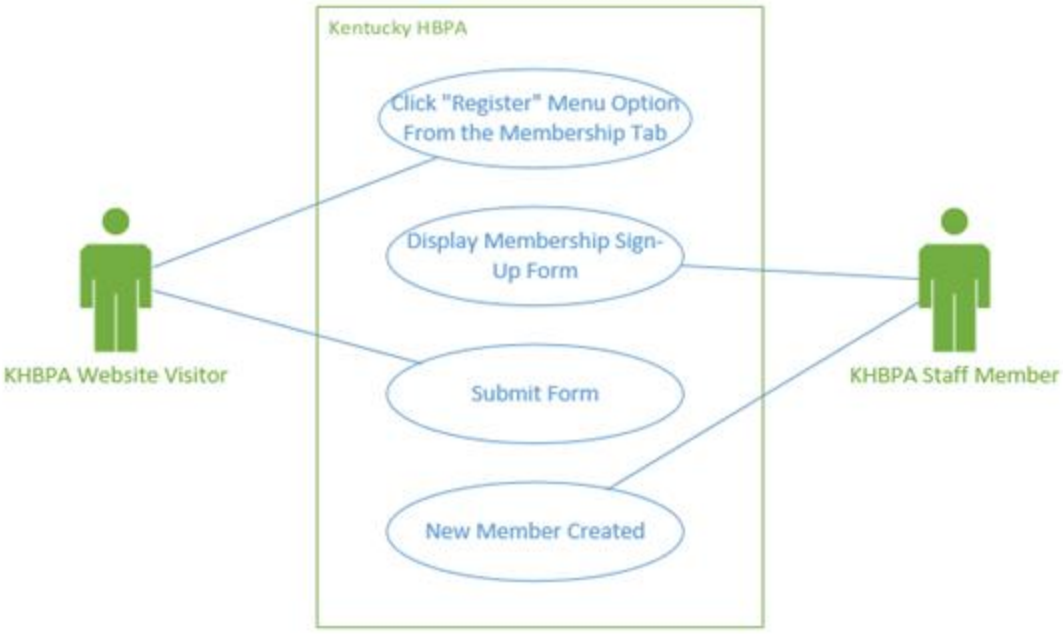
This Use Case Diagram shows the responsibilities of each party in displaying the biographies of the Board Members of the KHBPA. The visitor of the website must click on the “Bio’s” option from the dropdown menu that appears when the “About Us” tab is clicked. The system must then display the pictures and brief biographies of the board members of the KHBPA.



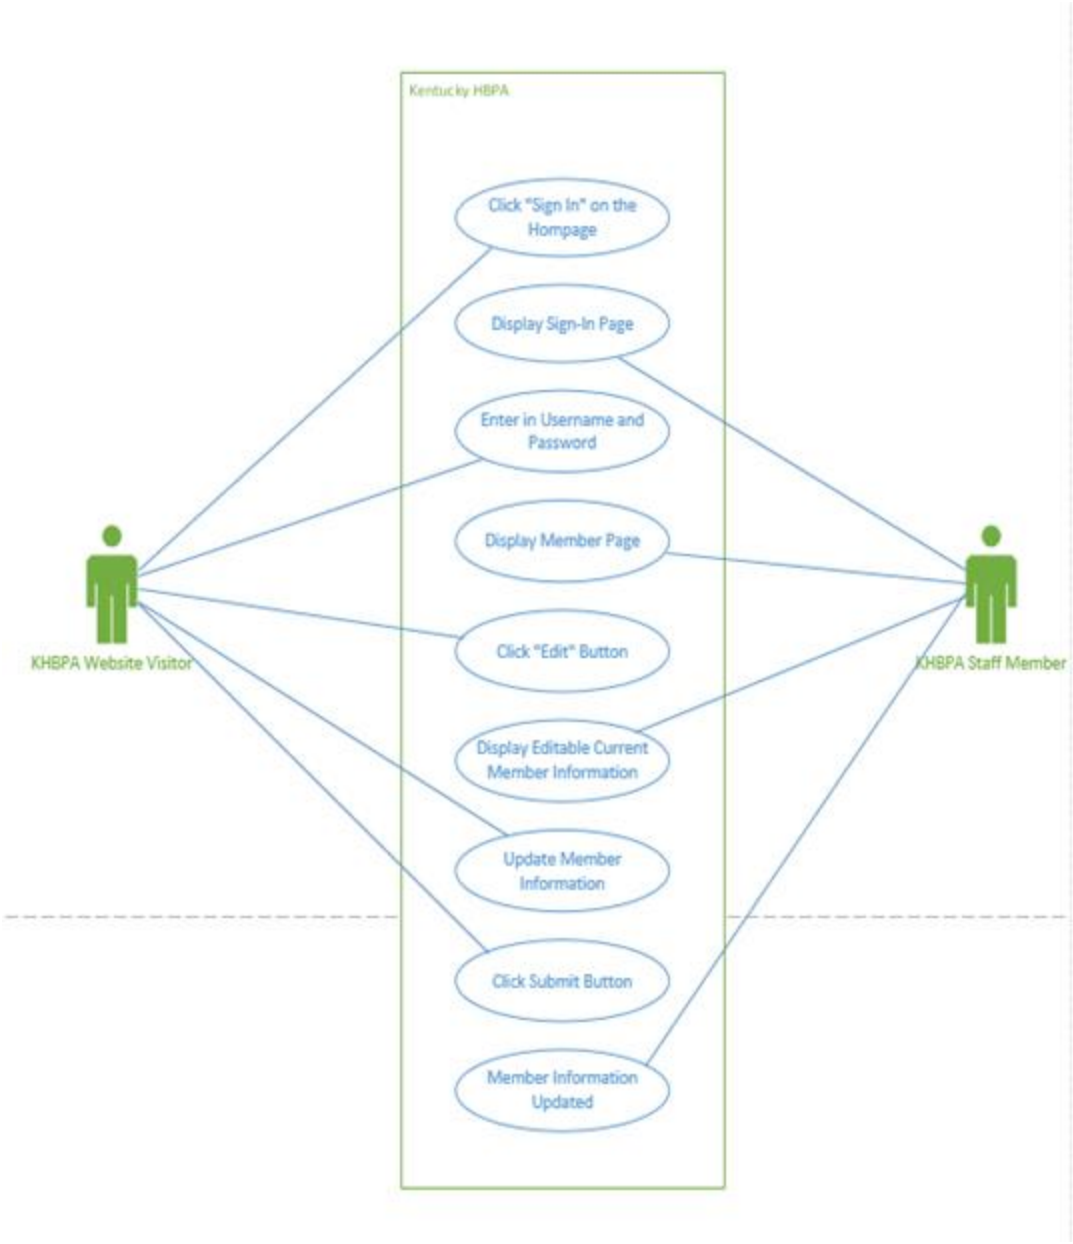
This diagram shows the responsibilities of each party in the displaying of the “Ways to Donate” page. The visitor must click the “Ways to Give” tab, and the system would display the ways to donate online and in person.



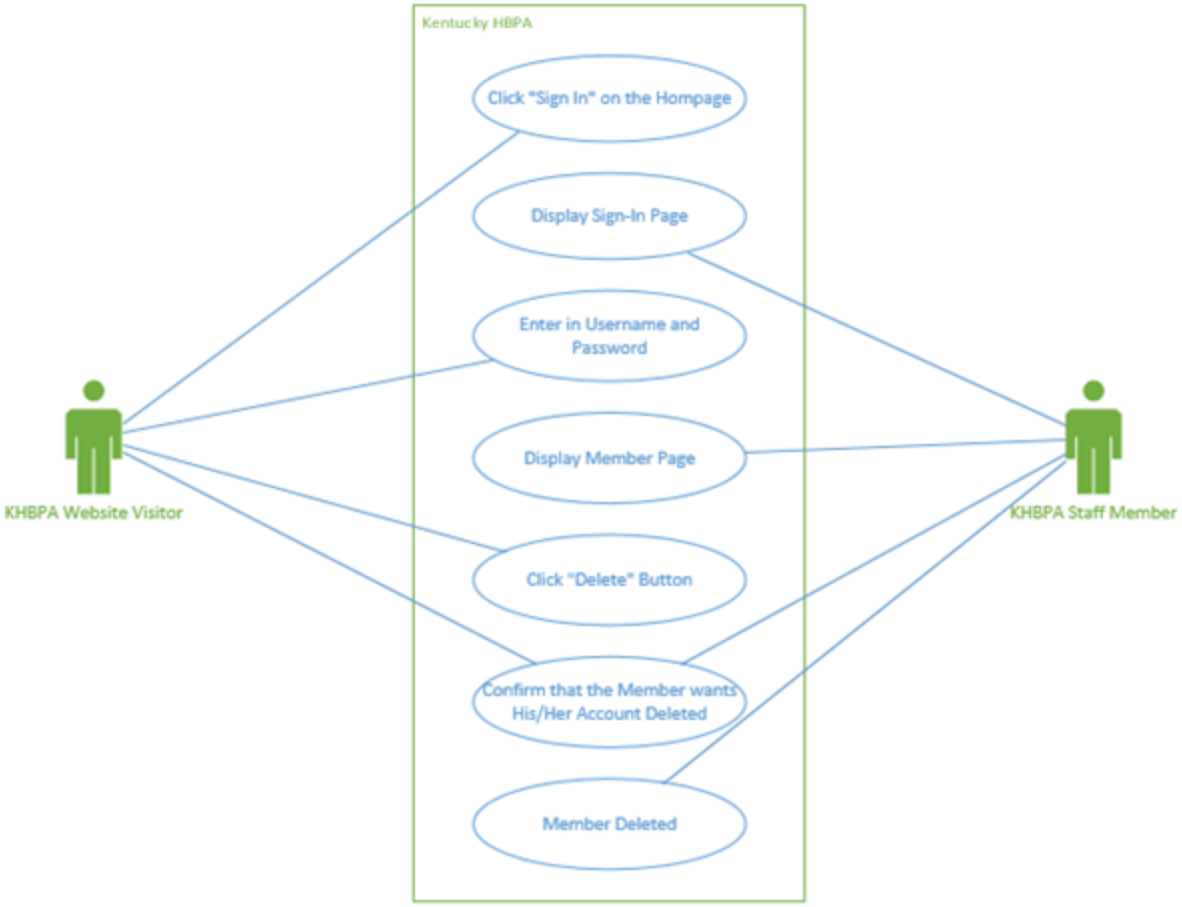
This Use Case Diagram shows the responsibilities of the two parties in the display of the KHBPA home page. The visitor must type the KHBPA URL into their web browser, and the system must display the home page for the visitor to see.



This is the Use Case Diagram for creating a KHBPA member online. The visitor would click register, the system would bring up a form with textboxes to capture the visitor's necessary information, the user submits the form, and the system creates a new member in the database



This use case diagram details the responsibilities of the member and system in the process of updating member information. The member must sign into the website, enter in their username and password, click the edit button, and change any necessary information in the editable textboxes that will be displayed by the system.



This Use case diagram shows the responsibilities of the KHBPA Member and the KHBPA system in deleting a member. The member must log into their account and select delete profile. They must confirm that they want to do so. The system displays the sign-in page and the confirmation that the user wants to delete their profile and membership information